

Parent Involvement assists parents and other adults with issues they face in nurturing the development of children in their care. Programs should help parents and other caregivers strengthen their parenting skills and family involvement in their children's lives. Since parenting covers many areas of PTA interest, the committee chairman should work with other chairmen, as appropriate, in planning activities.

DUTIES

- Appoint a committee. Work with the president and principal to have a broad-based committee appointed that is representative of the school community.
- Obtain or, if necessary, develop a procedure book that includes information from PTA materials such as the Parents Empowering Parents (PEP) Guide and other district, state and National PTA publications and resources.
- Provide forums for sharing cultural and life experiences so others understand and value their potential contribution.
- Survey parents to determine interests and needs in the home/school community. Consider program topics such as parenting skills, advocacy, reading, writing, math, health, violence prevention, the arts, and family life/sex education.
- Develop a parent outreach program that provides opportunities for interaction and engagement for all families, especially underrepresented groups.
- Plan a program. Ask the principal or designee and representatives from other school site groups which include parent members (e.g., Title I, school site councils, English Learners Advisory Council) to work with the committee to develop a year-long program of parent education/involvement activities. Be sure to budget for program expenses.
- Present the plan to the PTA board for approval. Submit the recommendation of the PTA board to the association for their consideration and vote of approval.
- Collaborate with other PTAs and community agencies to obtain information, materials and speakers. Explore ways to work with them in providing and publicizing parent education activities and co-sponsoring events.
- Publicize the activities. To be successful, each program or activity must be well publicized through the use of the PTA newsletter, e-mail contacts, flyers, the principal's letter, local newspaper articles and most important, through the use of personal phone calls. Contact local preschools, nearby schools, and neighbors to invite them to participate.
- Evaluate. In order to plan for the next year, evaluate the effectiveness of the current year's parent involvement program by using a year-end survey or an evaluation sheet filled out at each event.

SUGGESTIONS/IDEAS

- Work with school staff and parents to develop an ongoing parent involvement action plan.
- Sponsor parent information programs on issues such as substance abuse, health, child development, parenting issues such as discipline and teaching decision-making skills, curriculum, textbooks and computer-assisted learning and other topics identified by parents and community. Offer language translation when needed.
- Take meetings into the community to make parents and others feel welcome.
- Offer a variety of family activity opportunities. Use sensitivity in setting dates, times and places for programs and events.
- Promote teacher-parent communication, and encourage staff development training to assist teachers in working with and involving parents.
- Encourage parents to attend school-sponsored functions such as back-to-school nights and parent-teacher conferences.
- Put parenting tips in the school or PTA newsletter.
- Start a Parent Center at the school with information about parenting, community resources, school information and policy, curriculum, etc.
- Establish a Parent Shelf in the school office or library, where parents can pick up free materials or check out written and/or audio-visual materials on topics of interest to parents.
- Create a welcome packet for new parents, with parenting and school-related information.
- Develop a program and information brochures designed to empower parents as advocates for their children at school and during parent-teacher conferences.

The National Standards for Parent/Family Involvement Programs

National PTA, building on the work of Dr. Joyce Epstein of Johns Hopkins University, has developed six standards for effective parent involvement programs. The standards are guidelines for use in developing programs to involve parents and families. Comprehensive local parent/family involvement programs will be most effective if they include all of the standards. Keep these standards in mind when planning parent involvement programs and activities.

Standard 1: Communicating – Communication between home and school is regular, two-way and meaningful.

- Standard II: Parenting – Parenting skills are promoted and supported.
- Standard III: Student Learning – Parents play an integral role in assisting student learning.
- Standard IV: Volunteering – Parents are welcome in the school, and their support and assistance are sought.
- Standard V: School Decision Making and Advocacy – Parents are full partners in the decisions that affect children and families.
- Standard VI: Collaborating with Community – Community resources are used to strengthen schools, families, and student learning.
